May our lives reflect the greatness of the Divine Name throughout the world,
sparks within the Process of Creation.
May the world be ruled by our highest aspirations,
soon, in our lifetimes.
And let us say, Amen.

(Community recites together)

May the Divine Name be known as a Fountain of Blessings:
praised, honored, beautified, elevated, and exalted beyond any song or description that has ever been uttered.
And let us say, Amen.
May an all-embracing peace shower down from the heavens, refreshing the lives of all the people on earth.
May the Source of Peace inspire us to make peace for ourselves, for our community, and for all the people on earth.
And let us say, Amen.

* A NOTE ON TRANSLATIONS
(c) Lab/Shul 2010

All translations (c) Lab/Shul 2013. Please do not reproduce without explicit permission. The original poetic liturgical translations in this ritual reflect a continual work in process: sincere love for the ancient Hebrew poetry and commitment to a more modern, mindful, gender-neutral, and abstract understanding of prayer. Our translations offer an alternative to a hierarchical, directional relationship between humanity and the Divine. Unless otherwise noted, all translations are composed by Rabbi Amichai Lau-Lavie, and Ezra Bookman, along with Shira Kline, Naomi Less and members of the Lab/Shul Ritual Team, past and present. Blessings in the Hebrew Feminine are inspired by Kohenet Siddur with permission from Rabbi Jill Hammer.
